PREFACE.

The editor of the American Catalogue, in offering the present volume to the bibliographical public, aeknowledges with satisfaction and cordial thanks, the practical appreeiation of the previous volume which has made possible the issue of the present, and which reasonably assures the continuation of the enterprise as a permanent feature of Ameriean bibliography. This work, complete in itself for the period 1884–90, whieh it covers, is also the second supplement to the original American Catalogue of 1876, of which the first supplement, preceding this volume, covered the period 1876–84. The American Catalogue of 1876, the Centennial year, was the first adequate American trade bibliography, embracing in its first volume of a thousand pages author-and-title entries of all books in print and for sale in this country at that date, and in its second volume of five hundred pages, subject entries of the same books, and other features. That great work, founded and edited by Frederick Leypoldt, became his monument, for the loss and strain consequent upon this undertaking had much to do with his sudden and too early death. It required several years of labor on the part of the compilers, and when the last set was sold, at double the original price, the cost had been $27,622.46, and the return $27,321.21, without reckoning any compensation to its editor. It is a sad commentary on his self-saerifice that in many library catalogues, and in the Allibone supplement, the work to whieh he gave his life is not even entered under his name, but under those of the compilers of the individual volumes.

That work, developed from the organization of the "Publishers' Weekly" office, became the foundation of permanent Ameriean trade bibliography, and it may fairly be said that the system of which the "Publishers' Weekly" record is the beginning and the American Catalogue the crown, is now the most complete presented by any nation. The original seheme provided for sueeessive volumes of the American Catalogue, covering approximately periods of five years each. The present work is the seeond of these volumes. It covers the period July 1, 1884, to June 30, 1890, and endeavors to answer any questions as to books published in America or imported in editions within that time.

The growth of American publishing and of trade bibliography is shown by the fact that the author-and-title alphabet in the present work covers 582 pages as against 444 pages in the previous volume, although the period covered in the present volume is but six years as against eight in the previous volume, and that it ineludes approximately 28,000 books and 37,000 entries for the six years as against 22,000 books and 30,000 entries for the eight years preceding.

It was remarked in the preface to the previous volume that "completeness in bibliography is an ignis fatuus that eludes even the closest pursuit and the most painstaking accuracy." That wise remark has not prevented the present editor from attempting the very pursuit which he had condemned. With the inereasing effectiveness of the bibliographieal methods of the "Publishers' Weekly," defects and omissions became all the more evident from within, and instead of pursuing the original plan of confining the catalogue solely to the entries in the "Publishers' Weekly" and bringing it out in a minimum of time, the present editor unwisely attempted to obtain from publishers the information neeessary to make the work approximately complete. That attempt, whieh has of course been but partially sueeessful, has been the cause of great delay and of largely inereased outlay, probably also of direct pecuniary loss in sales. This experience gives the more reason to emphasize to publishers the absolute necessity of providing adequate reeord data at the time of the publieation of each book which they issue. The "Publishers' Weekly" record, from week to week, should be absolutely complete and correct, but it cannot be made so without such coöperation on the part of publishers.

The present volume, like its predecessor, follows essentially the plan of the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE. The first alphabet contains the entry under author's name and the entry under first word of title in the case of novels, juveniles, plays, and poems, and of other works whose title is not essentially a subject-title. The second alphabet contains the entry under specific subject, novels, juveniles, plays, etc., of course excepted. These two alphabets have been paged separately and duplicate title-pages furnished, so that the work may be bound either as one volume or two, according to the subscriber's individual pleasure and convenience. The CATALOGUE embraces reprints, such importations as are kept in stock, the law reports of the United States and State courts, and, in appendixes, Government publications, State publications, and publications of Societies. It has not been attempted to include local directories, periodicals, sheet-music, books chiefly blank, unbound maps, tracts, and other low-priced pamphlets.

The methods of entry are detailed in the notes facing each alphabet and each appendix. The entries, as in the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE, are generally in conformity with American bibliographical custom, following, as far as possible, the rules of the American Library Association. The size has been given in exact letters, instead of the indefinite numbers, so far as practicable. The main entry should be sought under the author's name, or, in the case of anonymous books, under first word of title, the other title entries and the subject entries being more abridged. The small figures give the whole number of the "Publishers' Weekly" in which the original full entry is to be found; an accompanying asterisk signifies that a descriptive note on the book will also be found there. This is a feature of the CATALOGUE particularly called to the attention of readers and students, as a bound set of the "Publishers' Weekly" can be found in most large libraries and in many bookstores.

The arrangement in the subject volume is by specific subjects, not by general classes. Books upon kindred topics are not grouped under a general heading, but each is placed under the particular subject of which it treats. There are many cases of books with obscure, ambiguous, or meaningless titles, in which it has been impossible, in the absence of the books themselves, to determine with certainty their specific subjects; they have been placed under general subjects where these were evident, but in some instances there have doubtless been mistakes, and perhaps ludicrous mistakes. It has not been practicable, in many cases, to await publishers' replies to specific questions as to such books. The editor will be glad to receive any corrections in this as well as in other respects. The user of the subject alphabet should remember, in general, that by reference to a more general heading he will often find what might otherwise escape him on the specific subject or kindred topics. In searching for books on specific subjects, the now considerable literature of bibliographic aids should be consulted by the student.

The list of publishers, which precedes the first alphabet, will be found useful as a directory of the American publishers during the six years past, with a brief history of the changes during that period; it numbers close upon 1,700 names, an increase of about 150 over the list of 1876–84. Nine-tenths of American publishing, however, is done by less than one-tenth of this number. In the large cities street addresses (the latest) are given so far as possible, and where no addresses are given it is because most careful inquiry through the postal authorities and otherwise has failed to give trace. The name on the title-page of a book is the one always given in the catalogue; changes of firm are traced as far as practicable in the prefatory list. Many entered as publishers are, of course, State or other printers or authors printing only their own books.

Despite the delays necessitated by the endeavors to fill gaps and obtain missing bibliographical data from publishers, the body of the work was put at the service of subscribers who so desired, with reasonable promptness, by its issue in parts, two constituting the author-and-title alphabet, and a third the subject alphabet. In comparison with the delays usual in preparing and printing library catalogues, for which the books themselves are at hand to supply any needed data, this result is of the highest credit to Miss Augusta I. Appleton, formerly of the Boston Athenæum, the chief-of-staff in the work of compilation, to Miss M. B. Joy, her first assistant, and to their helpers. The catalogue also owes much, in respect to the original material, to the work of Mr. Adolphus Growoll, managing editor of the "Publishers' Weekly," and to Miss Marion M. Monachesi, its bibliographical editor and the writer of most of the descriptive notes to which references are given in the main entries. The compilers also desire me to express thanks to the following publishing houses as those which responded most promptly and courteously to inquiries regarding their publications: the Catholic Publication Society; Ginn & Co.; D. C. Heath & Co.; Houghton, Mifflin, & Co.; P. J. Kenedy; Laird & Lee; Lee & Shepard; Little, Brown, & Co.; Longmans, Green, & Co.; Macmillan & Co.; the Pettibone Mfg. Co.; L. Prang & Co.; G. P. Putnam's Sons; Roberts Brothers; H. Roorbach; Geo. Routledge & Sons; the Southern Methodist Publishing House; E. & F. N. Spon; the Standard Publishing Co., Cincinnati; Street & Smith; the Universalist Publishing House; J. H. Vail & Co.; Ward, Locke, & Co.; and F. Warne & Co. Especial thanks should also be given to Messrs. Rockwell & Churchill, and particularly to Mr. E. W. Doyle, their superintendent in immediate charge of the matter, for their prompt and excellent typographical work.

The delay in the final issue of the work as a complete and bound volume, which has called forth something very like abuse from some impatient subscribers, has been due wholly to the desire of the editor to include certain features which had to be worked out by his own hand — a trusted assistant to whom a part of the work had been delegated during a considerable absence having unfortunately failed him utterly. Bibliography, which means much outlay in time and no compensation in money, can only be a by-calling to a man of affairs, and the engrossing nature of the editor's duties outside the editorial profession has left him little time for the personal work which takes time. It has been his desire, however, in each volume of the American Catalogue to include a new feature which distinctively widens the field of American bibliography, although it adds nothing to the pecuniary return of the work, and indeed involves direct outlay and incidental loss. These features, he trusts, meet the approval of the bibliographical public, even at the expense of delay — for there is no other return for them. In the previous volume, a plan for a brief record, or systematized check-list, of U. S. Government publications, was the feature in point. That record has been continued on the same lines in the present volume, and it is now really an adequate presentation of Government literature during the period of the catalogue, since every department and bureau of the Government, with a single exception, coöperated heartily in the preparation of the list. To Mr. J. H. Hickcox, whose monthly catalogue of United States Government publications is a most valuable feature of our national bibliography, is due the credit of the immediate work of compilation.

The new feature of the present volume is the list of State publications, which attempts for the first time the bibliography of the publications of the several States of this Union, which, in many departments, as the State Geological Surveys, Bureaus of Statistics, Railroad Commissions, etc., are of first importance. It is the desire of the editor to build up from this basis an adequate bibliography of State publications from the beginning of the States to the present time, provided sufficient coöperation can be secured, as is more fully set forth in the prefatory note of that appendix. Happily, both in regard to United States publications and State publications the scheme adopted enables the work to be extended into the past with comparatively little additional extension in space.

The list of Publishing societies has been made with the coöperation of the Smithsonian Institution, the Harvard College Library, and one of the staff of the Boston Public Library, and this also is practically a new feature. The Publishing societies have become so important an element in American literature that the very great labor required in compiling this appendix in its present shape seemed necessary and worth taking. It is the desire of the editor to extend this feature also into a separate work which will trace back on the present lines, and for this purpose the list, as stated elsewhere, will be kept in type for extension and correction. The coöperation of libraries, as well as of the societies themselves, is especially asked for this purpose.

The list of Books in Series extends in this volume to 400 entries, about double the number in the previous volume. It was the desire of the editor to complete this feature by including under each entry short titles of each volume in the series, but the expense and difficulty made this at present impracticable.

There remains to be worked out in future volumes the bibliography of privately printed books, very important but very difficult to obtain; and of municipal (city) publications, which, however, would be so numerous, so difficult to reach, and comparatively so unimportant, that at best only the most important cities should be attempted.

The editor will be glad to have sent to him, at the "Publishers' Weekly" office, notes of omissions or errors in this or previous volumes of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, which will be properly filed for future use.

The continuation of this volume will be found in the "Annual Catalogues" of 1890 (from July 1st), 1891, and succeeding years, which give in one alphabet the full-title entries and descriptive notes from the "Publishers' Weekly," in another an author-, title-, and subject-index by short-title, and in a third division the issues of the year by publishers; in the "Trade List Annual," with its index to the books of the earlier half of each year; in the monthly index to the books of the month, by author, title, and subject, printed periodically in the "Publishers' Weekly," and finally in the Weekly Record given week to week in that journal, which is the original record entry at the foundation of American trade bibliography.

In the preface to the volume of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876–84, the present editor outlined a scheme for the publication of a General Catalogue of American Publications of the Nineteenth Century. We are now within the last decade of that century, and face its end. The work, if it is to be done, must be begun almost at once, and it is the intention of the present editor to organize, before the close of 1893, preparations for the collection of material, provided there is reasonable promise of obtaining guarantees against too great pecuniary loss. The cost of such a work would scarcely be less than $50,000, and might reach nearer $100,000. Efforts will therefore be made to procure subscriptions for 500 guarantee copies, at $100 each, from libraries, publishers, the leading booksellers, clubs, private collectors of books, and public-spirited citizens interested in such national undertakings; and as collections are made, either of individual subscriptions or of instalments as required for the work of compilation, which will be the main element of cost, they will be placed in deposit with some Trust Company in the name of trustees, to whom the work will be secured as it progresses, thus affording a guarantee in case of the death of the editor or his inability otherwise to complete the undertaking. His personal work will be, of course, chiefly of organization, plan, and general control, nor could the present writer undertake, in view of other responsibilities pressing upon him and personal literary work in plan, to do more than act as general-in-command — in view of which he is willing to put aside, until the work had paid all other expenses, any question of personal pecuniary profit or other compensation, and indeed to contribute his share toward such other expenses. As planned, the work would make several thick octavo volumes, ranging not with the present series, but with the "Trade List Annual" volumes. Two of these, at least, would be devoted to main entries, by author and title; one to subject entries, one to Government publications, and a fifth (possibly conjoined with the former) to State publications, books issued by Societies, books in Series, and omissions and errata in the first volumes.

The most practicable method of compilation will probably be to cut the material from the AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876 and later volumes, and slip by authors (titles in case of unknown authors), to insert in the alphabet the Roorbach and Kelly and the Trübner entries, and to fill out from the copyright-deposit records, from the early trade publications and publishers' lists and from the printed catalogues of the larger libraries. Publishers would for this purpose be asked to report any of their publications since 1876 not given in the AMERICAN CATALOGUE volumes, and the coöperation of libraries would also be asked for the comparison of their catalogues. It might be desirable to print as proof the shortest possible title-a-line list of books uncatalogued in the existing AMERICAN CATALOGUES, starring those points on which further particulars are needed, that libraries might add omitted titles or fill out needed bibliographical particulars. It would be desirable to give birth and death dates of American authors, but this is probably too much to undertake. It would probably be well to confine the catalogue to books actually printed in America or having the imprint of American publishing houses, omitting the importations of English branch houses or American importers, which are included in the current AMERICAN CATALOGUES. The main entry volumes should be published in 1902 and 1903. As soon as these were printed, it would be expected that all interested, particularly the libraries and second-hand book-dealers, would coöperate in furnishing lists of omissions, and filling bibliographical deficiencies, so that the work, in its final form, might be approximately complete.

Meanwhile, work on the subject-volume would be progressing, but this would not be sent to the printer until reasonable time after the publication of the main entry portion had been given for the record of omissions, which, as also possibly Government and State publications and the issues of Societies, should be covered in the subject entries either in detail or by general cross-references. The U. S. Government publications, by the coöperation of such bibliographers or experts as Messrs. Hickcox, Lowdermilk, and J. G. Ames, preferably on the plan adopted for the current volumes, which permits extension backward as well as forward with a minimum of work and of space, could meantime be published, and the State publications also could be separately edited. These departments should assure more or less national and State support for the work, in the shape of guarantee subscriptions. The publications of Societies, which, when complete for the century, would be of the greatest value to scholars, the lists of books in Series, including the individual issues in nonpareil, and similar features, could also be separately and simultaneously edited, on the lines already laid down.

If this series of volumes should be completed, as it ought, by 1905, it would then be comparatively easy to complete the national record, as would not be possible in an older nation, by the issue of a prefatory volume, with the help of library coöperation, giving American publications in the eighteenth and previous centuries.

Since the period of this catalogue terminated, the International Copyright Law has been passed. This will be a great benefit, not only to American literature and to the American book trade, but to American bibliography in particular, as the new law requires the deposit of all copyright books, simultaneously with their publication, as an essential condition of copyright. It is therefore to be presumed that all books of any importance published in America will be recorded in the Library of Congress and thus an official basis will be possible for American bibliography. From this point of view as well as from the wider consideration of national honor and international justice, the editor can best terminate these prefatory words by recording hearty congratulations on the achievement of international copyright in America.

AUTHOR–AND–TITLE ALPHABET

NOTE ON AUTHOR-AND-TITLE ENTRIES.

Imprint entries. — Full entries are given under names of authors when known, — under initials or pseudonyms when the real names have not been ascertained, — under names of editors of collections, — and under governments and names of societies. The order in such full entries is: author; actual title; edition; date of publication, followed by superior figures referring to that number of the Publishers' Weekly in which the entry occurred, an asterisk designating a descriptive note in the same number; date of copyright, when other than that of publication; illustrations; size, indicated by letters whenever the book has been seen by the cataloguer; name of series; binding, if other than cloth; price; and name of publisher, abbreviated as shown in the list of publishers which prefaces this work. Anonymous works are entered under the first word of the title not an article; translations, under the author of the original work. The works of married women and of others who have changed their names, are generally given under the last known form, but in a few cases the better known maiden name or pseudonym has been retained with a cross-reference from the present or true name. In authors' names honorary degrees are omitted unless these or names of places are needed to distinguish different authors of the same name. Initials and pseudonyms when used as headings are treated as real names, the last part being placed first: as A., E. P. — Eliot, George.

English compound names are usually entered under the last part of the name; foreign ones under the first part. French and English names beginning with a prefix (excepting the French de or d') are entered under the prefix; in all other languages (and in the case of the French de or d') they are entered under the part of the name following the prefix. The German diphthongs, ä, ö, ü, are so spelt (excepting when like Goethe, the author himself used ae, oe, ue) and are arranged as a, o, u. In general, the vernacular usage of the language is followed; in doubtful cases cross-references indicate the proper heading.

Transactions, journals, reports, and collections of a society are entered under its name, works by individual members, although published by the society, are placed under names of authors. Church constitutions, hymn-books, liturgies, prayer-books etc., when official, appear under the name of the church society, otherwise under the title; individual churches under the name of the place.

Under "Bible" the entries in the author alphabet include only the text, with or without notes; commentaries are entered under the names of the commentators. In the subject alphabet all works relating to the Bible are grouped under that heading with subdivisions. In the case of law books, laws, proceedings, reports, etc., are entered under the name of the country or state, with reference from name of compiler.

Reference (Title) entries. — Novels, juveniles, plays, and other popular books having characteristic titles, are also entered in brief under the first word of the title not an article.

Series. — Books published in series are entered under the name of editor, when that is known, with individual titles as contents, and a reference from the title of the series. When sold separately the volumes are also entered fully under the names of individual authors. With long series of fiction or miscellaneous works it has been deemed sufficient to give an entry under the general name of the series with the number of volumes published during the period covered by the catalogue, and entry under author and title of each work contained in the series. For earlier issues of the series former catalogues should be consulted.

Where there are several editions of the same work, the arrangement is not by the name of the edition, but by the alphabetical order of the names of the publishers.

Books published between July 1, 1884–June 30, 1890, but now out of print, are entered in the catalogue with the abbreviation (o. p.) following the price.

A single dash indicates the repetition of the preceding heading (author or title); two dashes indicate the repetition of the preceding double heading (two joint authors, or two titles) or of the preceding main and subordinate headings. A shorter dash between prices indicates various prices and bindings ranging between those given. Dates of publication separated by a dash are the years of publication of the first and last volumes of the work or series.

Brackets after a proper name enclose the real name of a pseudonymous writer, the family name of a nobleman, the present name of an authoress better known by a former name, the pseudonym (in quotation marks) of a writer entered under real name. Brackets are also used to designate what does not appear on the title-page of the book. The date is enclosed in brackets when it is not on the title-page, but is inferred from the time of record or other data.

Abbreviations are usually self-explanatory, and follow as a rule the recommendations of the American Library Association [Library Journal, March, 1878]. A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: (Augustus, August); B: (Benjamin); C: (Charles); D: (David); E: (Edward, Edouard, Eduard); F: (Frederic, Friederich); G: (George, Georg, Georges); H: (Henry, Heinrich); I: (Isaac); J: (John, Jean, Johann); K: (Karl); L: (Louis, Ludwig); M: (Mark, Marc); N: (Nicholas, Nicolaus, Nicole); O: (Otto); P: (Peter); R: (Richard); S: (Samuel); T: (Thomas); U: (Ulrich); V: (Victor); W: (William, Wilhelm, Willem). The following abbreviations are also used: Caro. (Caroline); Cath. (Catharine); Ctte. (Charlotte); Eliz. (Elizabeth); Fes. (Frances); Ha. (Hannah); Ht. (Harriet); Marg. (Margaret); Ma. (Mary); Reb. (Rebecca); Sa. (Sarah).

The less evident abbreviations are: adpt.(adapted), adv.(anced), anc.(ient), ann.(ual), app.(endix), arr.(anged), c. (copyright), coll.(ections), comp.(iled or compiler), conc.(erning), const.(itution), corr.(ected), descrip.(tion), disc.(overy), doc.(ument), ed.(ition or editor), embr.(acing), eng.(raving or engraved), enl.(arged), expl.(ained or explanation), for.(eign), il.(lustrations or illustrated), imp.(erial), incl.(uding), leis.(ure), lib.(rary), lit.(erature), man.(ual), mod.(ern), narr.(ative), nat.(ional or natural), obs.(ervations), o. p. (out of print), pap.(er), pop.(ular), por.(trait), pref.(ace), prep.(ared), quest.(ion), rel.(ating), resp.(ecting), rev.(ised or revision), roxb.(urgh), roy.(al), sci.(ence), sel.(ected), ser.(ics), S. S. (Sunday school), sup.(er), temp.(erance), tr.(anslation or translated), u.(und).
